

No. 18-15288

---

---

UNITED STATES COURT OF APPEALS FOR THE NINTH CIRCUIT

---

CHARLES TILLAGE; JOSEPH LOOMIS,
Plaintiffs-Appellees,

v.

COMCAST CORPORATION; COMCAST CABLE COMMUNICATIONS, LLC,
Defendants-Appellants.

---

On Appeal from the United States District Court for the Northern District of California
(No. 3:17-cv-06477)

---

WASHINGTON LEGAL FOUNDATION'S AMICUS CURIAE
BRIEF IN SUPPORT OF DEFENDANTS-APPELLANTS'
PETITION FOR PANEL REHEARING AND REHEARING EN BANC

---

Corbin K. Barthold
Cory L. Andrews
WASHINGTON LEGAL FOUNDATION
2009 Massachusetts Ave., NW
Washington, DC 20036
(202) 588-0302
cbarthold@wlf.org

August 16, 2019

*Counsel for Amicus Curiae
Washington Legal Foundation*

---

---

CORPORATE DISCLOSURE STATEMENT

Washington Legal Foundation has no parent corporation, it issues no stock, and no publicly held corporation owns a ten-percent or greater interest in it.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES.....	ii
INTEREST OF AMICUS CURIAE .....	1
SUMMARY OF ARGUMENT.....	2
ARGUMENT .....	4
I. MCGILL IS BIASED AGAINST ARBITRATION IN PRINCIPLE.....	4
II. MCGILL IS BIASED AGAINST ARBITRATION IN PRACTICE .....	7
CONCLUSION.....	11

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Page(s)

CASES:

Ajamian v. CantorCO2e, L.P. , 203 Cal. App. 4th 771 (2012).....	10
Am. Express Co. v. Italian Colors Rest. , 570 U.S. 228 (2013) .....	6, 7
Armendariz v. Found. Health Psychcare Servs., Inc. , 24 Cal. 4th 83 (2000) .....	10
AT&amp;T Mobility LLC v. Concepcion , 563 U.S. 333 (2011) .....	passim
Bickel v. Sunrise Assisted Living , 206 Cal. App. 4th 1 (2012).....	10
Chavarria v. Ralphs Grocery Co. , 733 F.3d 916 (9th Cir. 2013) .....	7, 8
DIRECTV, Inc. v. Imburgia , 136 S. Ct. 463 (2015) .....	1
Epic Systems Corp. v. Lewis , 136 S. Ct. 1612 (2018) .....	1
Iskanian v. CLS Transp. Los Angeles, LLC , 59 Cal. 4th 348 (2014) .....	9
Kindred Nursing Ctrs. Ltd. P’ship v. Clark , 137 S. Ct. 1421 (2017) .....	2
McGill v. Citibank, N.A. , 2 Cal. 5th 945 (2017) .....	passim
McGovern v. U.S. Bank N.A. , 362 F. Supp. 3d 850 (S.D. Cal. 2019) .....	5
Mitsubishi Motors Corp. v. Soler Chrysler-Plymouth, Inc. , 473 U.S. 614 (1985) .....	6

	Page(s)
Nat’l Shooting Sports Found., Inc. v. State , 5 Cal. 5th 428 (2018) .....	5
Samaniego v. Empire Today LLC , 205 Cal. App. 4th 1138 (2012).....	10
Serafin v. Balco Properties Ltd., LLC , 235 Cal. App. 4th 165 (2015).....	10
Shearson/Am. Exp. Inc. v. McMahon , 482 U.S. 220 (1987) .....	1, 6
Sonic-Calabasas A, Inc. v. Moreno , 57 Cal. 4th 1109 (2013) .....	8, 9

CONSTITUTIONAL PROVISIONS:

U.S. Const. art. VI, cl. 2 .....	5, 6
----------------------------------	------

STATUTES:

9 U.S.C. § 2 .....	1, 5
Cal. Civ. Code § 3513 .....	passim
Cal. Civ. Code § 3515 .....	5
Cal. Civ. Code § 3538 .....	4
Cal. Civ. Code § 3545 .....	5
Cal. Civ. Code § 3546 .....	4, 5

OTHER AUTHORITIES:

Jeffrey S. Klein, A Few Clauses to Help Lawyers Along , L.A. Times, www.lat.ms/2HyLNXX (Sept. 14, 1989) .....	4
Victor E. Schwartz & Christopher E. Appel, Setting the Record Straight About the Benefits of Pre-Dispute Arbitration , WLF Legal Backgrounder, www.bit.ly/2Z6rKqg (June 7, 2019) .....	1

INTEREST OF AMICUS CURIAE*

Washington Legal Foundation is a nonprofit, public-interest law firm and policy center with supporters nationwide. WLF promotes free enterprise, individual rights, limited government, and the rule of law. It appears often as amicus curiae in important Federal Arbitration Act cases. See, e.g., Epic Systems Corp. v. Lewis, 136 S. Ct. 1612 (2018); DIRECTV, Inc. v. Imburgia, 136 S. Ct. 463 (2015). And it has published many articles on arbitration by outside experts. See, e.g., Victor E. Schwartz & Christopher E. Appel, Setting the Record Straight About the Benefits of Pre-Dispute Arbitration, WLF Legal Backgrounder, www.bit.ly/2Z6rKqg (June 7, 2019).

The FAA “establishes a federal policy favoring arbitration.” Shearson/Am. Exp. Inc. v. McMahon, 482 U.S. 220, 226 (1987). An arbitration clause in a contract involving commerce, the FAA says, is valid and enforceable. 9 U.S.C. § 2. True, the FAA contains a saving clause, but it says merely that an arbitration clause may be invalidated based on any ground “for revocation of any contract”—based, that is, on * No party’s counsel authored any part of this brief. No one, apart from WLF and its counsel, contributed money intended to fund the brief’s preparation or submission. All parties have consented to the brief’s being filed.

---

a generally applicable contract defense. Id. If the federal policy favoring arbitration is to be upheld, the saving clause must be taken to mean no more than what it says.

The panel decision instead expands the meaning of the saving clause far beyond what its words can bear. The decision enables a party to use a free-floating state public policy—rather than a contract defense—to attack a duly executed arbitration clause. The decision also “covertly” (and improperly) lets a supposedly general rule be used as a precision tool for “disfavoring contracts that (oh so coincidentally) have the defining features of arbitration agreements.” Kindred Nursing Ctrs. Ltd. P’ship v. Clark, 137 S. Ct. 1421, 1426 (2017).

WLF urges the panel, or, failing that, an en banc panel, to grant rehearing and repair the Circuit’s reading of the FAA saving clause.

SUMMARY OF ARGUMENT

McGill v. Citibank, N.A., 2 Cal. 5th 945 (2017), says that an arbitration clause may not extinguish a party’s right to seek injunctive relief for the public at large. The panel here held that this “McGill rule” is not preempted by the Federal Arbitration Act. Under the FAA’s saving clause, an arbitration agreement that is otherwise enforceable under federal law remains subject to any generally applicable state-law contract defense. 9 U.S.C. § 2. The McGill rule, the panel concluded, is such a defense.

As the panel acknowledged, however, the McGill rule arises from California Civil Code § 3513, a state “maxim of jurisprudence” that says: “a law established for a public reason cannot be contravened by private agreement.” California’s maxims of jurisprudence are not contract defenses; they are (at most) guiding principles for interpreting statutes. A court that invalidates part or all of an arbitration clause because it conflicts with one of these maxims has not properly applied the FAA’s saving clause; it has simply slighted the FAA and flouted the Supremacy Clause.

In any event, we know from AT&T Mobility LLC v. Concepcion, 563 U.S. 333 (2011), that a court may not apply even a generally applicable contract defense in a way that will “disproportionate[ly] impact” arbitration agreements, id. at 342. The panel cited five cases that apply the §3513 bar outside the context of arbitration. Only one of them is from this century; the oldest is 122 years old. Contrast this with the heap of recent decisions that have used §3513, or the principle underlying it, to alter or erase an arbitration clause. The comparison confirms that §3513 is being used, quite improperly, as a vehicle to disfavor arbitration.

ARGUMENT

I. McGILL IS BIASED AGAINST ARBITRATION IN PRINCIPLE.

The McGill rule stands on California Civil Code § 3513, which says that although “any one may waive the advantage of a law intended solely for his benefit,” a “law established for a public reason cannot be contravened by private agreement.”

Section 3513 is a California “maxim of jurisprudence.” The maxims lie, “almost buried and forgotten,” among California’s nineteenth-century Field codes. Jeffrey S. Klein, A Few Clauses to Help Lawyers Along, L.A. Times, www.lat.ms/2HyLNXX (Sept. 14, 1989). They include such cosmic riddles as “That is certain which can be made certain,” and “Things happen according to the ordinary course of nature and the ordinary habits of life.” Cal. Civ. Code §§ 3538, 3546. As these examples suggest, the maxims “can mean everything and nothing.” Klein, supra. Some of them, in fact, seem to contradict both §3513 and the notion that arbitration clauses should be subjected to discrimination. “He who consents to an act,” for example, “is not wronged by it.” Cal. Civ. Code § 3515. “Private transactions,” after all, “are fair and regular.” Id. at § 3545.

If it seems like §3513 makes no sense as a contract defense, that’s because it isn’t one. The maxims of jurisprudence are “interpretive canon[s] for construing statutes.” McGovern v. U.S. Bank N.A., 362 F. Supp. 3d 850, 860 (S.D. Cal. 2019) (quoting Nat’l Shooting Sports Found., Inc. v. State, 5 Cal. 5th 428, 433 (2018)). So the McGill rule is not a contract defense that properly triggers the FAA’s saving clause. See 9 U.S.C. § 2. It is, rather, a free-floating public policy.

A state court may not pick up any old state public policy and use it to undermine the FAA. If Congress says an arbitration agreement not subject to a contract defense must be enforced, a state court may not refuse to enforce the agreement because it thinks arbitration isn’t part of the “ordinary course of nature and the ordinary habits of life.” Cal. Civ. Code § 3546. Federal law is the supreme law of the land; it trumps contrary state law. See U.S. Const. art. VI, cl. 2.

The California courts gain nothing from their frequent use—including in McGill itself—of the “effective vindication” theory, under which an arbitration clause is void if a litigant cannot “vindicate its statutory cause of action in the arbitral forum.” Mitsubishi Motors Corp. v. Soler Chrysler-Plymouth, Inc., 473 U.S. 614, 637 (1985). This exception applies only when the FAA runs into “a contrary congressional command.” Shearson, 482 U.S. at 226 (emphasis added). A state law cannot be “vindicated” at a federal law’s expense: only a federal law can displace another federal law. See again U.S. Const. art. VI, cl. 2.

The limited scope of the vindication theory was confirmed in American Express Co. v. Italian Colors Restaurant, 570 U.S. 228 (2013), in which all nine justices treated the exception as one that governs federal law. The five-justice majority described the exception as addressing whether “federal statutory claims are subject to arbitration.” Id. at 235 n.2 (emphasis added). And the four dissenters were even more explicit. The effective-vindication rule, they explained, ensures that “an arbitration clause may not thwart federal law,” and that a plaintiff can enforce “meritorious federal claims.” Id. at 240-41 (Kagan, J., dissenting) (emphasis added). “We have no earthly interest (quite the contrary),” they continued, “in vindicating [state] law.” Id. at 252.

The “effective-vindication rule comes into play,” therefore, “only when the FAA is alleged to conflict with another federal law.” Id.

II. McGILL IS BIASED AGAINST ARBITRATION IN PRACTICE.

Even if it stood on a real contract defense, the McGill rule would still be preempted. The rule’s only purpose is to serve as a tool for striking down arbitration clauses.

As Concepcion confirms, the FAA bars a court from applying a “generally applicable” state doctrine “in a fashion that disfavors arbitration.” 563 U.S. at 341. Such use of a doctrine is not valid simply because the doctrine also governs contracts outside the context of arbitration clauses. Id. at 342. A doctrine that stands on “the general principle of unconscionability,” for example, nonetheless violates the FAA if “in practice” it “would have a disproportionate impact on arbitration agreements.” Id.

This Court has acknowledged that Concepcion sets forth this “disproportionate impact” principle not as some kind of illustrative guideline, but as a rule. “The FAA preempts a contract defense,” the Court has declared, “that may be generally applicable to any contract but [that] disproportionately impacts arbitration agreements.”

Chavarria v. Ralphs Grocery Co., 733 F.3d 916, 919 (9th Cir. 2013) (citing Concepcion, 563 U.S. at 342).

The California Supreme Court, meanwhile, has neglected this principle. What matters, in that court’s view, is merely that a rule respects arbitration’s “fundamental attributes” and “applies equally to arbitration and nonarbitration agreements.” Sonic-Calabasas A, Inc. v. Moreno, 57 Cal. 4th 1109, 1149 (2013). The California high court has even gone so far as to stand the “disproportionate impact” principle on its head. “A facially neutral state-law rule,” the court has said, “is not preempted simply because its evenhanded application ‘would have a disproportionate impact on arbitration agreements.’” Id. at 1130 (emphasis added) (quoting Concepcion, 563 U.S. at 342).

McGill relies heavily on this inversion of Concepcion. In declaring that the FAA does not preempt the §3513 no-waiver maxim, it says:

[The §3513] bar is not a defense that applies only to arbitration or that derives its meaning from the fact that an agreement to arbitrate is at issue. . . . [A] provision in any contract—even a contract that has no arbitration provision—that purports to waive . . . the statutory right to seek public injunctive relief . . . is invalid and unenforceable under California law.

2 Cal. 5th at 962. Under Concepcion, this is insufficient. It is not enough that a rule apply “even [to] a contract that has no arbitration provision.” Id. A rule also must not “in practice” have “a disproportionate impact on arbitration agreements.” Concepcion, 563 U.S. at 342.

Unlike the California Supreme Court, the panel seemed to grasp that a contract defense must apply outside the context of arbitration not just in principle but in real cases. “California courts,” the panel wrote, trying to bolster the McGill rule, “have repeatedly invoked California Civil Code § 3513 to invalidate waivers unrelated to arbitration.” 928 F.3d at 827. There follows a string cite with a case from 2002, a case from 1977, a case from 1956, a case from 1944, and a case from 1896.

The panel did not address the fact that, today, the California courts use §3513 specifically as a cudgel for striking down arbitration agreements. The California Reports are rife with recent cases that use §3513 (or rely on a case that in turn uses it) to disfavor arbitration. See, e.g., McGill, 2 Cal. 5th at 962; Sonic-Calabasas A, 57 Cal. 4th at 1130; Iskanian v. CLS Transp. Los Angeles, LLC, 59 Cal. 4th 348, 382-83 (2014) (“[I]t is contrary to public policy for an [arbitration] agreement to . . . require[e] employees to waive the right to bring a PAGA [representative] action.”); Armendariz v. Found. Health Psychcare Servs., Inc., 24 Cal. 4th 83, 100-01 (2000) (“[A]n arbitration agreement cannot be made to serve as a vehicle for the waiver of [state] statutory rights created by the FEHA.”); Serafin v. Balco Properties Ltd., LLC, 235 Cal. App. 4th 165, 183 (2015) (“[A]n arbitration agreement cannot be made to serve as a vehicle for the waiver of [state] statutory rights.”); Bickel v. Sunrise Assisted Living, 206 Cal. App. 4th 1, 8-9, 12 (2012) (“Where a provision in an arbitration agreement seeks to waive such [state statutory] rights, as was the case here, the provision is contrary to public policy and may be severed.”); Samaniego v. Empire Today LLC, 205 Cal. App. 4th 1138, 1147 (2012) (“Where, as in this case, arbitration provisions undermine [state] statutory protections, courts have readily found unconscionability. . . . [A]n arbitration agreement cannot be made to serve as a vehicle for the waiver of [state] statutory rights.”); Ajamian v. CantorCO2e, L.P., 203 Cal. App. 4th 771, 799 (2012) (“[T]he arbitration provision . . . forces [the plaintiff] to waive her unwaivable [state] statutory rights and remedies.”).

It’s clear what’s really going on. California’s courts have dusted off an ancient, rarely used doctrine and repurposed it as a device for striking down arbitration agreements. The McGill rule exists precisely because it has “a disproportionate impact on arbitration agreements.” Concepcion, 563 U.S. at 342. Whatever it might be in theory, in practice the McGill rule is just another of the “great variety” of “devices and formulas” that judges “hostil[e] towards arbitration” use to “declar[e] arbitration against public policy.” Id.

CONCLUSION

The petition should be granted.

August 16, 2019

Respectfully submitted,

/s/ Corbin K. Barthold

Corbin K. Barthold

Cory L. Andrews

WASHINGTON LEGAL

FOUNDATION

2009 Massachusetts Ave., NW

Washington, DC 20036

(202) 588-0302

cbarthold@wlf.org

Counsel for Amicus Curiae

Washington Legal Foundation

CERTIFICATE OF COMPLIANCE

I certify:

(i) That this brief complies with the page limit set forth in Circuit Rule 29-2(c)(2). The brief contains 2,063 words.

(ii) That this brief complies with the typeface requirements of Fed. R. App. P. 32(a)(5) and the type style requirements of Fed. R. App. P. 32(a)(6), because it has been prepared using Microsoft Office Word 2010 and is set in 14-point Century Schoolbook font.

August 16, 2019

/s/ Corbin K. Barthold

CERTIFICATE OF SERVICE

I certify that on August 16, 2019, I filed the foregoing brief of Washington Legal Foundation via the CM/ECF system and served the foregoing via the CM/ECF system on all counsel who are registered CM/ECF users.

/s/ Corbin K. Barthold