WLF Asks Supreme Court to Reverse Second Circuit's Flawed Reading of SEC Rule 10b-5

(Macquarie Infrastructure Corp. v. Moab Partners, LP)

“Left in place, the Second Circuit’s holding would force issuers to bury investors in an avalanche of trivial information just to avoid potential federal-securities-fraud liability. That is not what Congress intended.”

—Cory Andrews, WLF General Counsel & Vice President of Litigation

WASHINGTON, DC—Washington Legal Foundation filed an amicus brief today with the U.S. Supreme Court supporting the Petitioner in Macquarie Infrastructure Corp. v. Moab Partners, LP. WLF’s brief asks the high court to review, and ultimately to overturn, the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit’s novel interpretation of federal securities law that splits with every other circuit that has decided the issue. WLF’s brief was prepared with generous pro bono support from Lyle Roberts, George Anhang, and William Marsh of Shearman & Sterling LLP.

Section 10(b) of the Securities Exchange Act of 1934 makes companies liable for misleading statements in their financial filings. Concluding that Item 303 of Regulation S-K creates a privately enforceable duty to disclose, the Second Circuit allowed a shareholder to sue a company for omitting 303 information from its financial statement—even though that omission did not render any portion of the filing misleading.

WLF’s brief details how the Second Circuit’s reasoning is at odds with the plain meaning of the SEC rule, the common law of fraud-by-omission, and longstanding Supreme Court precedent. WLF’s brief argues that expanding the court-created private right of action under Rule 10b-5 to cover omitted Item 303 information would expand liability far beyond anything contemplated by Congress.
